

Global News Canada World Money Health Sports Entertainment Weather Video Global National

GlobalTV.com • RSS • Contests

Shaw Media Sites

Global BC

CIBC Unlimited®
Chequing Account

Life adds up.
Your finances should too.

Find out how you could get up to 15,000 Aeroplan® Miles.*

*Limited time offer. Conditions apply.

aeroplan

Learn more

CIBC FOR WHAT MATTERS.

Home Video Weather Events Traffic Programs Personalities Schedule Contests

Search Global News network GO

Residential pesticides should be restricted, not banned, in B.C.: committee

Dirk Meissner, THE CANADIAN PRESS  Thursday, May 17, 2012 4:45 PM

  Be the first of your friends to recommend this.

VICTORIA - Science says "No" when it comes to banning cosmetic use of pesticides in British Columbia, but the politics screams "Yes," admits the chairman of an all-party government committee probing pesticide use.

Kootenay East Liberal MLA Bill Bennett said 350 scientists at Health Canada say B.C. doesn't need to ban cosmetic pesticide use, but Premier Christy Clark has already promised to get rid of them.

"We're not government," said Bennett. "We're a legislative committee. We had an opportunity to take a look at this and put the politics aside."

The eight-member committee _ five Liberals, three New Democrats — was appointed last June to examine the scope of a possible ban on the sale and use of cosmetic pesticides.

After 8,675 submissions, 22 meetings and presentations from environmental groups, industry organizations, scientific organizations and academics, the committee made 17 recommendations, but did not call for a ban on the pesticides used to ensure a perfect lawn and weed-free garden.

"Critics may say that myself as chair and the majority members don't care about human health, don't care about children, don't care about people that get cancer," said Bennett, adding that two of his grandparents, his mother, father and an uncle all succumbed to cancer.

Bennett suggested he was slightly pre-disposed to supporting a ban for health reasons, but wasn't convinced it was needed after reviewing the evidence.

"If I was convinced that we needed to do this, I would definitely have been there," he said. "From our perspective, the scientific evidence does not warrant preventing British Columbians from buying and using approved domestic-class pesticides."

Bennett said Clark and her cabinet still have the power to overrule the committee's recommendations and introduce a ban.

But he said the report represents an effort to put science ahead of shifting political winds.

"What possible political advantage could there be to us making this announcement?" he said. "I think that there is almost a chemo-phobia in society. There is a lack of scientific literacy."

Environmental groups reacted harshly to the committee's recommendations, saying pesticide use represents a threat to the health of British Columbians.

"On May 17, 2012, the Liberal government chose the weakest response across Canada," said a headline emblazoned on Pesticide Free BC's website. "B.C. is not getting a cosmetic pesticide ban."

The website stated the government moved quickly in 2011 to protect sled dogs after a dog slaughter in Whistler, but it's moving slowly when it comes to protecting children and families from pesticides.

Clark said during her Liberal leadership campaign in 2011 she wanted to see a cosmetic pesticide ban.

Local News

LATEST VIDEO

Thu, May 17 : The best travel deals from our expert Claire Newell

Thu, May 17: The latest health headlines from Dr. Art Hister

More Video

Advertisement

Canada Debt Bailout?

Canadian banks agree to forgive up to 75% of consumer debt in 2012!

See If You Qualify...

TOP STORIES

B.C. government, WorkSafe BC support farm inquest recommendations
B.C.'s government said it is ready to take action on the recommendatio...

B.C. court convicts 3 of 5 men in 'Sanghera crime group' on weapons charges
A B.C. Supreme Court has convicted three of five men accused of dozens...

800-year-old red cedar hacked down in B.C. forest: environmental group
VANCOUVER - An environmental group says an 800-year-old red cedar tree...

RECOMMENDATIONS

"These dangerous pesticides are proven to increase the likelihood of childhood cancer and other illnesses, and have no place near our homes," she said in a campaign statement.

"I don't want to see my son playing on a lawn with toxic pesticides. I don't want to see anyone's child playing on a lawn with toxic pesticides."

Bennett said the health and environmental arguments for a cosmetic pesticide ban are compelling, but the committee was not convinced cosmetic pesticide use "was endangering the health of people, whether their children, pregnant women or anybody."

Bennett said he was aware that 40 B.C. communities have local pesticide bylaws in force and seven provinces have legislated cosmetic pesticide use bans, but he stuck to his scientific argument.

"When somebody believes her child is being hurt by Roundup or Kill-Ex or some other pesticide, that mom is pretty darn compelling when she goes to council," he said. "Our job was to look at this as objectively as we can."

The committee's three NDP members broke from the committee's decision not to support a cosmetic pesticide use ban and announced support for a ban.

New Democrat Rob Fleming, the committee's deputy chairman, said the NDP will ban cosmetic pesticide use if it forms government.

© The Canadian Press, 2012

Tools: Print Share: Recommend 0

One person dead, police on scene at Kelowna homicide

12 people recommend this.

Missing Alberta couple found

703 people recommend this.

Video of a brawl involving two local lacrosse teams goes viral

83 people recommend this.

800-year-old red cedar hacked down in B.C. forest: environmental group

38 people recommend this.

Facebook social plugin

SAVE UP TO 20% EVERY DAY

Book Now

ChoiceHotelsWest.ca

Terms & Conditions Apply

About Us | Privacy Policy | Terms & Conditions | Copyright | Media | Advertise | Open Data | Contact Us | Sitemap
Global TV | HGTV | Showcase | Slice | Food Network

© Shaw Media Inc., 2012. All rights reserved.