Industry insiders say you'll be paying quite a bit more to keep your lawn weed-free this coming year.

Weed Man's Dave Hinton told 680 CJOB's News At Noon, lower cost products will no longer be available as a result of new regulations introduced by the Manitoba government.

"Prices for the alternative weed control, and there's really only one that's available that works is about 700% higher for the product than the traditional weed control.

Hinton says that's the case whether you hire a professional or buy the product off the shelf and do it yourself.

"A big commercial property that we look after, this year the product cost for the weed control for the season was $474. Coming up in 2015, $5,820."

He says the lower cost product which is approved for use by Health Canada can still be used on golf courses or farms.
