NDP supports Kelowna council

Tue, 2010-02-09 10:25.

Local News

Provincial New Democrats are applauding Kelowna council's decision to recommend a province-wide ban on cosmetic pesticide use by homeowners.

NDP Environment Critic Rob Fleming says Kelowna's decision should be a wake-up call for the Liberal government to support legislation banning the unnecessary use of carcinogenic chemicals in B.C.

"It's shocking to me that the BC Liberals continue to ignore the wishes of local governments, and most recently I hope the voice of Kelowna being added to many other parts of the province that wish to see this kind of legislation pass that will have an influence on changing government's mind."

Fleming introduced pesticide-banning legislation in the fall after a similar resolution was passed by the Union of B.C. Municipalities and plans to re-introduce it during the spring session of the legislature.

Kelowna is the latest community to suggest a province-wide ban on cosmetic pesticides. Other communities including Victoria, Vancouver and Burnaby have made similar moves.
