

Swarm of bees attacks garden workers at Umhlali home

It is understood the men were mowing a lawn near a beehive, causing the bees to become agitated.

• 22 hours ago

Juan Venter  1 minute read

A swarm of bees attacked six garden workers at an Umhlali Country Club and Golf Estate property this morning.

It is understood the men were mowing a lawn near a beehive, causing the bees to become agitated.

Salt Rock bee expert, Trevor Thompson, previously told The Courier that any form of vegetation trimming or mowing grass around bees causes them to feel threatened.

ALSO READ: Swarm of frenzied bees attack and kill Chaka's Rock pets

Of the six workers attacked by the swarm, two needed advanced life support care, said IPSS Medical Rescue spokesperson Paul Herbst.

The men were attended to by paramedics before being taken to hospital for further evaluation.

For breaking news follow The North Coast Courier on Facebook, Twitter, Instagram and YouTube.

Join our Telegram Broadcast

Service at: <https://t.me/joinchat/yJULuN8NaCs5OGM0>

Join our WhatsApp Broadcast Service: Simply add 082 792 9405 (North Coast Courier) as a contact to your phone, and WhatsApp your name and surname to the same number to be added.

